houses its cutting-edge data center, administration offices, the ACT Service Center, and an enterprise ACT store focusing on peripherals, networking, and other enterprise products. In addition to its own computer store in the heart of St. John's, where it offers a complete line of brand name computers and accessories, along with a wide range of repair and support services, the company is also a RadioShack distributor. ACT operates two RadioShack stores with the flexibility of offering its own products in addition to the RadioShack brand. "We bring technology to Antigua," Doumith proudly professes.

Doumith says that his company's current goals are to expand its IT services throughout the Caribbean region, grow the server capacity of Antigua's online gaming industry, and offer cloud computing for its clients. "We have already looked at Hewlett-Packard's design for cloud computing in Antigua, whether for disaster recovery or for backups," he reports. "The infrastructure is in place, so you will not need to go outside of the region or outside of Antigua to have your content stored. This is a market that we're going towards."

With over 30 staff members and decades of expertise in the technology field, in 25 years, ACT has grown to become the country's largest, single source technology provider, and Salomon Doumith is convinced that the best is yet to come with the next generation of Doumiths. Salomon has three motivated, intelligent sons who share a common drive to bring the company another 25 plus years of success, and expand the presence of innovative technology in Antigua. His oldest son, Aziz, has recently departed IBM in the U.S. to leverage his skills in the family business after completing his Master's Degree in Computer Science. His second son, Andrew, has recently completed his Bachelor's Degree in Management Information Systems and is in the process of pursuing a Master's Degree in Engineering in Technical Entrepreneurship.
