

The Peak Bottling Company Limited

Pure spring water from the blue mountains of jamaica

The Peak Bottling Company was founded in 1992, the brainchild of Tony Kelly, a retired brew master and senior executive in the Caribbean's bottling industry. According to David Wong, the company's current Managing Director, Kelly was looking for a new project to engage in, just as the bottled water trend was beginning to appear on the scene in North America.

"It started out as a project," Wong says, "just to see what would happen." What began merely as a hobby for Kelly, Charles Johnston, and another partner, Beverley Lopez, became a multi-million dollar company within a few short years.

Today, the Peak Bottling Company Limited distributes pure spring water to end-users' homes, offices, institutions, and businesses, as well as to wholesalers and retailers who resell its products. Its approximately 200