

embroidered with projects bearing the Cavalier stamp of quality and longevity, ranging from luxury private residences to hotels, schools, condominiums and office buildings. One corner of downtown Nassau – at the intersection of Shirley and Charlotte streets – is flanked on three sides by Cavalier-built properties.

Cavalier has left an indelible impression both in Nassau and the out islands.

The Valentines Resort in Harbour Island was completed in 2007 and reflects the island's rustic charm. Luxury condominiums at Bayroc on West Bay Street in Nassau were completed in 2009. The company was awarded the contract to build the Atlantis Conference Centre on Paradise Island for Kerzner International – a $60 million project that was finished in 18 months and now houses events and concerts for the Atlantis resort.

Cavalier began work at the Albany development in 2008 for the Tavistock Group, whose principals include British financier Joe Louis and professional golfers Tiger Woods and Ernie Els. The $100 million project opened in 2010 and comprises a series of townhouses and amenities, including restaurants, a clubhouse, fitness center and spa facilities. The company also delivered the Straw Market, on time and on budget, for the Bahamas government on the grounds of the structure destroyed by fire in 2001.

The prime minister at the time, Hubert Ingraham, attended the official opening and said, "I wish also to acknowledge the excellent work undertaken by the pri-
